

Hospice Care Preference List

A person who is diagnosed with a terminal illness, who has a life expectancy of six months or less, and has found that curative therapy is no longer effective, appropriate or desired, may want to consider hospice care. This type of care is available only by physician order.

Following the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, DRH Health wants to assure you that you have choices selecting a provider of hospice services. The facilities listed on the back of this sheet have indicated that they are currently accepting new patients.
